Location: San Joaquin Farm Bureau

3290 Ad Art Road, Stockton, CA 95215

Light refreshments provided!

Program Purpose

California is facing what could be the worst drought on record, which may have severe consequences on our water supply. The Mokelumne Watershed Interregional Sustainability Evaluation (MokeWISE) program has developed projects and programs that will increase the sustainability of our region and help mitigate the effects of drought.

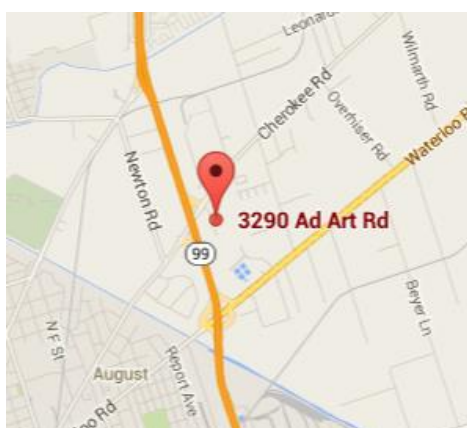

Program Overview

The MokeWISE program has developed and evaluated alternatives to enhance water resources management within the watershed – ranging from the Sierra foothills in Alpine County to the Delta. A variety of water sources have been assessed and evaluated, including stormwater, recycled water, Mokelumne River water, groundwater, desalination, and conservation. The program has resulted in a broadly-supported water resources program that will help us better prepare for an uncertain future. The MokeWISE program, over the last 22 months, has:

- Evaluated opportunities for integrated and collaborative water management, with the potential to provide benefits to a broad range of Mokelumne River basin stakeholders
- Identified actions with broad support amongst participating stakeholders
- Developed a multi-regional conceptual plan to implement the preferred projects

Join Us!

During this fifth workshop, you will learn about the broadly-supported projects included in MokeWISE and the multi-regional conceptual plan for their implementation.
